Dear Barnet Council,

I have regularly attended private swimming lessons at this residence (30 Allandale) and can attest that the service is an important resource for the community. The lessons are delivered in a calm and thoughtful way, with careful consideration for others. Without these lessons, many children would face difficulty adapting, and we could lose a valuable local amenity that greatly benefits young people. Barnet is fortunate to have this pool, as it offers a unique and tranquil setting that many children would otherwise be unable to experience.

From my experience of my children swimming there over the past two years, I can say that there is never congestion on the road and that there are numerous places to park in the vicinity, without issue.

On arriving and leaving, it would be impossible to know that there is a swimming pool, or indeed any activity at all, taking place in the house. It is quiet and calm - there is no indicative noise at all. In fact, friends of mine just moved into number 26, and had no idea there was a pool at number 30 before I told them.

This swimming pool is an important resource for the community. It is calm and professionally run, with the highest possible hygiene and teaching standards. There is never more than two lessons at any time taking place in the pool, making it much safer and better for anxious children than other places.

Yours sincerely,

Alicia Durkin
